Evening of Cultural Exchange

By Jan Stein

"An Evening of Cultural Exchange with a Global Perspective," will be sponsored by the Cultural Affairs Committee on Tuesday evening, Nov. 17.

A panel discussion on current international socio-cultural and

The program will be moderated by Dr. Hagop S. Pambookian, (originally from Cyprus and Lebanon), a psychology instructor.

Pambookian, creator of the event, will encourage audience participation in order to better educate SSU students and other audience members about their global neighbors.

The program is open to all interested community members and is free. A reception, featuring cookies and other desserts from the representative countries, will follow immediately.

White House Fellowship applications

Applications are being accepted for White House Fellowships, according to Linda L. Tarr, director of the President's Commission on White House Fellowships.

The White House Fellowship program provides gifted and highly motivated

Americans with firsthand experience in the process of governing the nation and a sense of personal involvement in leadership, the commission said.

U.S. citizens in the early and formative years of their careers are eligible to apply. However, employees of the federal government are not eligible, except for those in the U.S. military services.

Those selected for fellowships are paid generally not higher than a GS-15, which is currently $55,746 annual salary.

Applications will be accepted until Dec. 1, 1987.

For information: President's Commission on White House Fellowships, 712 Jackson Place NW, Washington, DC 20503, (202) 395-4522.

Campus capsules

Why dropout?

Why do students leave school? The main reasons, at least at the University of Wyoming, are dissatisfaction with the quality of instruction and financial problems. A survey by a UW graduate student in psychology also reported 29 percent of the students who didn't re-enroll said they simply didn't know what they wanted to be. Most of the students who left the UW didn't enter the job market, but instead transferred to another institution.

Football food fight

University of Southern California officials say that although thousands of university students and alumni invaded the University of California-Berkeley for the annual football game, it was done without the destruction and violence typical of years past. The only marked misbehavior: Berkeley students pelted the USC band with bananas, avocados, potatoes, peaches, and oranges — despite stern warnings from the UC-Berkeley administration.

Ugliest campus

Texas Tech University was voted the ugliest campus of them all...again. Sports Illustrated has once again selected the school for that dubious honor. But this time, loyal Tech supporters have struck back. Some canceled magazine subscriptions, and the local radio station held a contest to determine the "Ugliest Magazine Staff in America." The winner? It wasn't Field and Stream.

Dr. Hagop Pambookian, an Associate Professor of Psychology is a new faculty member in the Division of Social Sciences. He was born in Turkish Armenia and was raised in Cyprus Lebanon. He got his elementary education in Beirut, Lebanon. Later, he attended an American boarding school in Nicosia, Cyprus, while studying Armenian. After graduating, he has studied at the American university in Beirut and got his B.A. in psychology. After obtaining his degree he taught English there and also in Nicosia, Cyprus.

In 1961, he came to the United States to advance his education, studying at Columbia University in New York City where he earned his Master of Arts degree in educational psychology. He earned his Ph.D. from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

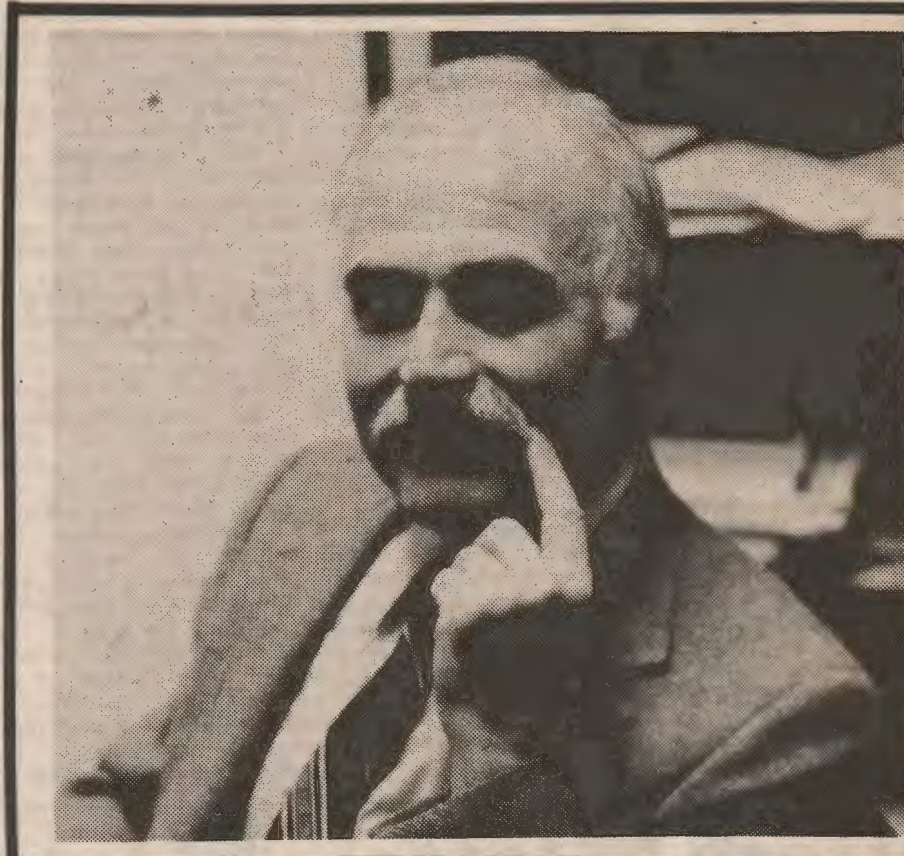

Pambookian has taught in several universities in the United States including, S.U.N.Y. College at Potsdam, New York, the University of Michigan and Marquette University. While at Marquette he was awarded a nine-month Senior Fulbright Fellowship in the U.S.S.R. and taught psychology at the Yerevan State University, in Yerevan, the capital of the Soviet Armenian Republic, as an exchange professor. He was the first American to get a nine-month long scholarship to the Soviet Union. He taught psychology at Yerevan State University, the capital of the Soviet Armenian Republic. Speaking the Armenian language, he was able to lecture the students in their own language. While in the Soviet Union he visited various educational institutions. He met with school children, teachers, psychologists and other scientists. He learned much about Soviet education, psychology and life-style and gained insight into Soviet culture and psyche. He gave talks on U.S. schooling, psychology and teaching to various groups in Yerevan and Moscow.

Pambookian has returned to the Soviet Union several times to gather data for his research on Soviet psychology. He has given numerous talks on various facets of Soviet schooling, human development and psychology to various groups throughout the United States and abroad.

He has published several articles on effective teaching and Soviet psychology and teaching in professional journals. Freedom of thought is a no no

After being in college for 13 quarters in a row, I have noticed several patterns which exist in the intellectual world.

In this article, I wish to address one of the patterns: The fact that there is an accepted intellectual circle that everyone is expected to run in, and freedom of thought is a "no no." No one who claims to be intellectual is allowed to dishonor the scientific sacred-cows and think outside the circle of accepted thought.

The most refreshing experience a student can encounter is to sit in a class with an instructor who has the guts and integrity to dare to be a free-thinker.

I have been lucky; I have had instructors who were self-confident and high enough in self-security to practice freedom of thought and self-expression. But for now, let's mention the type of teacher who doesn't risk expulsion from the hearts of their peers. And, at the same time, let us not forget that teachers don't just fall into two distinct categories, but may occupy a spot somewhere along the spectrum between the two points.

One of my former instructors once accused me of being anti-intellectual. He said I refused to become a scholar. His final advice to me at the end of the quarter was to get into the intellectual groove and become a scholar. I should learn to think in a disciplined fashion, he said, and to accept the views of those worthy masters and doctors who have excelled and been accepted in the intellectual world.

As I think back over the quarter, I recall the names of those worthy masters whom he had accepted as intellectual thinkers: Marx, Lennin, Trotsky, Ghandi, Martin Luther King, and many more who are less known to us. Even here I see a pattern -- all these men were of the same philosophy. For them, the answer to everything was: Revolution. They were anti-capitalist, anti-free enterprise and they believed in the great paradoxical mystery of anarchy/totalitarian dictatorship.

Most instructors are die-hard believers in what they call the scientific method, or the empirical procedure. This doctrine states that nothing can be accepted as truth unless it can be observed. The old timers made great use of the system of trial and error over many generations. They had truths they could fully depend on which couldn't be observed or understood; they just worked because they had been proven over and over to work. Not only this system, but many others, are wonderful tools of the truth-seeker.

But any system outside the accepted circle isn't considered by the intellectual scientific minds, because they are locked in their own shells and they don't want to be bothered with truth if it upsets their tater-wagon.

Professors always cry "academic freedom" as a defense for teaching communism and atheism, but when someone attempts to teach 1776 Americanism and Christianity, they are accused of all sorts of horrible things: They are unenlightened, anti-intellectual, unscholarly, and of course they are in violation of the constitution for not adhering to the policy of separation of church and state -- "They even tried to teach creationism!"

The intellectuals fail to mention that the secular humanism which they teach is listed as a religious belief in some government reports. They also fail to mention that the theory of evolution is not scientific thought; no true scientist would accept a theory with so little proof. Instead, evolution is religious doctrine. It is scientism -- because it refutes blind faith to believe it. Christianity, on the other hand, doesn't require blind faith -- there are three witnesses for every truth.

I hope your teachers fall into the group which defends "truth" and "freedom of thought" outside the accepted circles. If you have some of the other kind, then have patience with them.

Except for being narrow-minded, maybe they're good teachers.

So long for now.

Advice for Russ

To the Editor

I have a few things to say regarding Russ Pruitt's Nov. 2 commentary, "What Goes Up, Must Come Down."

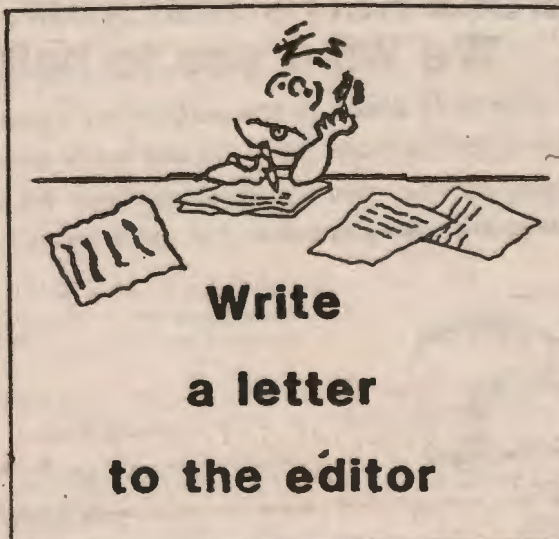

First off, this has got to be the first time since the late-late Willie Shakespeare's day that anyone has used a phrase like "nay and forsooth," or "perchance to peruse."

Of course, I guess there will always be pseudo-intellectuals like Russ Pruitt and Diane Chambers (of Cheers). But wait...Miss Chambers was removed from the show. I suppose that leaves Mr. Pruitt in a class by himself. Doesn't Mr. Pruitt know that the use of adjective-laden "cutsies" is boring, stupid and trite?

Secondly, Mr. Pruitt, a statement, in print, doesn't necessarily make a prophecy. I'm referring here to his misquote of Andy Warhol. Mr. Pruitt said, and I quote, "Andy Warhol prophesied that eventually every person in America would be a star for two minutes." The direct quote is, "In the future everyone will be world-famous for fifteen minutes." --Andy Warhol from the catalog of his photo exhibition in Stockholm (1968).

Finally, Mr. Pruitt, I would advise you to learn how to properly research and attribute quotes. Paraphrasing does not tell your readers what was actually said or meant. Maybe if you would leave your ego behind for a few days you would learn proper English (with a capital E) and research methods.

Intramural football results

By Carrie Craig

Two intramural football games were played on Sunday, Oct. 25 at Spartan Stadium.

The first game was not played due to lack of players, so the second game started at 1 p.m. In this game, the Beer Busters defeated the Hill Hounds 28-6.

In the first half, the Beer Busters scored on a Jason Burchett run, but the extra-point attempt was unsuccessful, making the score 6-0. The Hill Hounds got the ball, but neglected to score, so Dee Bendenelli ran in another touchdown for the Beer Busters. The extra two were scored on a Jason Burchett pass to Randy Mahaffy. The half ended at 14-0.

To begin the second half, the Hill Hounds scored when Jonathon Robinson ran in a touchdown. The PAT was no good, so the score stood at 14-6. Dee Bendenelli took the initiative once again for the Beer Busters, scoring on a run, but the extra point attempt failed, making it 20-6. The game ended when Steve Whittaker ran in for six, and Jason Burchett and Roger Glaze teamed up for the extra two. The game ended in favor of the Beer Busters, 28-6.

In the second game, the Squeezers defeated The Burg 26-16. In the first half, Kevin Pace scored his first of four touchdowns for the Squeezers, on a run. The field goal attempt was no good, so the Squeezers were up by six. The Burg bounced back on a Jeff Rase touchdown, and Mike Tipton ran in the two extra points. The score was now 8-6. Kevin Pace ended the half with his touchdown run, but the Squeezers couldn't come up with the field goal, so the half ended at 12-8.

During the second half, The Burg scored for a final time when Mike Tipton ran in his first touchdown. The extra two were scored by a Jeff Rase pass to Eddie Scott. The Burg was now ahead 16-12. Kevin Pace was the lone scorer for the rest of the game, scoring two touchdowns for the Squeezers. The game ended in favor of the Squeezers, 26-16.

The two teams now in first are the Burners and the Beer Busters, both undefeated. The games begin at noon every Sunday.

The life of Thomas Jefferson

Book Review

by

Marianne Dillow

•IN PURSUIT OF REASON, THE LIFE OF THOMAS JEFFERSON by Noble E. Cunningham, Jr. Louisiana State University Press, 1987, hardback, 414 pages.

It was my intention, upon completion of reading In Pursuit of Reason: The Life Of Thomas Jefferson, to write a formal book review.

The purpose of a book review is to entice the reader to select the book because it is a worthwhile book or to discourage the reader because the book is a waste of paper. In Pursuit Of Reason is not a waste of time. It is a magnificently detailed account of Jefferson's life, and for whatever reason you might choose this book, whether you are an admirer of Jefferson; a history student or teacher; a patriot or just an avid reader, I doubt you will be disappointed.

Keep in mind that this book was written by a history professor and is not an "easy" book. This is not a book for skimming, for in skimming details are missed and this book is full of details.

Rather than the dry, formal critique normally associated with reviews, what follows are a few interesting facts about Jefferson that you may or may not know, or maybe have forgotten. If these facts interest you, then I urge you to read In Pursuit of Reason.

Jefferson was the principal author of the Declaration of Independence. He was an early proponent of free, general education. From 1779-1781, Jefferson was governor of Virginia.

Jefferson proposed the decimal system of coinage. From 1784-1789 he lived in France. His duties included negotiating treaties of commerce. In 1785 he was appointed minister to France.

Upon his return to the U.S. from France, Jefferson found he had been named secretary of state under President Washington.

Jefferson had a major role in the formation of the Republican party. In 1801, he published a manual of parliamentary practice which is still the fundamental guide to senate practices today.

Jefferson was more active in his campaign for the presidency than any previous candidate. From 1801-1809 Jefferson was president of the United States.

In 1804 Jefferson sent the Lewis & Clark expedition to explore the newly acquired Louisiana purchase.

Aaron Burr, who was Jefferson's vice-president during his first term, was indicted for treason during Jefferson's second term (Burr was not vice president when indicted).

Finally, Jefferson is considered the founder of The University of Virginia.

Leppard on fire again

Scott Dickison, The Open Air Entertainment editor, is an SSU Fine Arts major. He is a photographer and has produced videos for area television stations.

Four year absence brings heavy metal rockers "Def Leppard" back.

It's been four years since heavy metal group Def Leppard rocked us with Pyromania. Pyromania produced Leppard great hits like "Rock of Ages," "Photograph" and "Foolin'" back in 1983.

Def Leppard members are Joe Elliott, lead vocals; Baron Beaverbrook, bass; Phil Collen, guitars; and Rick Allen, drums. They're back with a new album Hysteria and back in the limelight again.

It took them three years to produce their latest LP. The first 16 months of recordings they did were all scrapped. Members of the band said they wanted to put together an album that was 60 minutes in length; totally filled with music they like best.

So, now with the help of digital electronics, the band was able to accomplish this great achievement. Without a doubt, another first in the record business.

Def Leppard struggled to produce this long awaited album; they wanted it to be just right. Surprisingly, along with the album they managed to produce a book as well. Animal Instinct tells their story of the past four years of life with the band. They also threw in some Ross Halfin pictures and some other souvenirs you've never seen before.

If you would like to order a copy of Animal Instinct, you can send a check or money order for $14.45 to R & A Book Distributors, 38575 Ninth Street East, Suite 218, Palmdale, Calif. 93550.

The new album Hysteria has already produced Leppard's two Top 40 hits "Women" and "Animal." Other songs hopefully will be big hits are "Rocket," "Pour Some Sugar On Me" and "Love Bites."

In the song "Gods of War" from the new LP, President Reagan makes brief appearances at the end of the song, with the sounds of machine gun fire and missiles exploding, for sound effects in the background. They did this probably to capture a glimpse of what was going on in the world at the time.

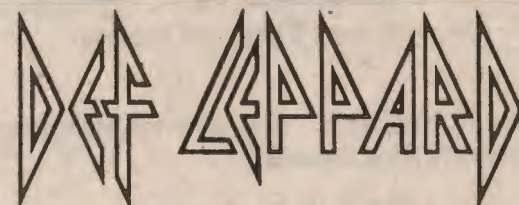

If you've followed Def Leppard over the years like most people. You probably know all the rumors that are spread around about them. What rock groups are there that people don't spread rumors about them? I would like to mention one particular rumor about Leppard's Joe Elliott. Everyone was saying that he was dead because of a drug overdose. But, actually that rumor about Joe was not true. And Joe is still very much alive and singing better than ever.

For 1987, Def Leppard has a drummer who only has one arm. His name is Rick Allen and he is an exceptional drummer. How hard do you think it would be to only have one arm and still be such a good drummer? Rick's handicap hasn't stopped him from doing what he likes to do and I think he should be commended for his accomplishment. To only be able to play the drums with one hand and be in a popular and successful band like Leppard is an accomplishment in itself.

Something ironic about Leppard's new album is that all of the songs are of at least five or six min. in length. The songs are longer in length than usual for any album.

Let's all face it, Def Leppard is back and ready for more. Their new album Hysteria is going to be another big selling LP this year. Keep pourin' out the hits Def.
